

James Zimmerman Quoted in Barron's—US Companies Aren't Confident About China. Xi Could Put Up More Roadblocks

Partner James Zimmerman was quoted in "US Companies Aren't Confident About China. Xi Could Put Up More Roadblocks," an article in Barron's,* regarding reports indicating U.S. companies in China face a worsening business environment in the coming years.

"We might witness an accelerated level of strategic reshoring, nearshoring, or offshoring to more friendly countries," James said. "This doesn't mean a complete decoupling or exodus from China. Foreign business has to be strategic to survive and ensure the resilience of their supply chains and revenue flow."

Read the full article in Barron's.*

*Subscription-based publication

Contact

James M. Zimmerman

Partner

JZimmerman@perkinscoie.com 86.10.5971.9388