3 Alternative Protein Trends To Watch In 2020

The ever-expanding market for alternative proteins shows no signs of being a mere food fad. A January 2020 report found that consumer curiosity is the primary factor driving participants to try these plant-based alternatives. A November 2019 Kerry white paper found that taste was the largest barrier to further adoption, with 73% of survey participants stating that alternative proteins should taste like meat. UBS predicts that plant-based meats will experience a compounded annual growth rate of 28%, making it an $85 billion market in 10 years.
