

Illicit Cannabis Is the Problem, Not State-Legal Markets

In late December 2022, the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy, or ONDCP, released its annual drug enforcement report to Congress, focusing in part on high-intensity drug trafficking areas.

Below, we call into question some of the hyperbole around state-regulated markets, refocus attention on the real danger to public safety—the illicit market—and highlight some of the takeaways for the nation's cannabis industry.

Read the full article on Law360.*

Authors

Andrew J. Kline

Senior Counsel

AKline@perkinscoie.com 303.291.2307

Thomas (Tommy) Tobin

Counsel

TTobin@perkinscoie.com 206.359.3157

Explore more in

Cannabis Law