

Articles

Trademark infringement has no statute of limitations but should have.

Instead, Defendants must rely on the ambiguous and complicated laches defense. The clear notice of a statute of limitations would improve litigation efficiency and reduce legal costs.

Read the full article on Marquette Intellectual Property & Innovation Law Review

Authors

Aaron Schindler

Associate

ASchindler@perkinscoie.com 608.294.4014

Explore more in

Intellectual Property Law Trademark, Copyright, Internet & Advertising