

From artificial intelligence (AI) tools that can generate highly sophisticated art, music, and conversation to technology capable of recreating Elvis on the big screen, a recent explosion and maturing of generative AI technologies is disrupting all forms of content.

But while AI tools are becoming ubiquitous and creating new and innovative ways to create and monetize content, unanswered legal questions leave the legal landscape uncertain. This article discusses recent developments regarding the copyrightability of AI-generated works.

Click here to read the full article in the Journal of Emerging Issues in Litiga...

Authors

Lisa T. Oratz

Senior Counsel

LOratz@perkinscoie.com 425.635.1456

D. Sean West

Associate

DWest@perkinscoie.com 206.359.3598

Explore more in

Technology Transactions & Privacy Law Artificial Intelligence & Machine Learning