

Podcasts

May 27, 2021

Is the Future of AI Buddhist?

We live in a world where artificial intelligence (AI) is becoming omnipresent. How do we build AI that doesn't simply replicate our biases and further perpetuate discrimination in hiring? Bill Duane, a tech leader, former Superintendent of Well Being and Sustainable Performance Development Programs at Google, and practicing Buddhist, serves as Strategy and Implementation Lead with the Center for the Study of Apparent Selves (CSAS). CSAS explores how Buddhist concepts hold the promise of addressing key AI issues, such as moral decisions, unexpected consequences, human flourishing, and comparing human and machine intelligence. Join Bill for a discussion of what AI is and how it can amplify the best of a company's values.

Listen to "Is the Future of AI Buddhist? - Episode 5" on Spreaker.

Find us where you get your podcasts

Explore more in

Labor & Employment