

On this episode of The Tech Law Hangout, host Jordan Becker discusses whether an inventor really needs a patent lawyer and how working with one can ensure the patent application is of the highest quality possible. We dive into factors that inventors need to consider before deciding whether to write the application themselves, use an invention help company, or engage a patent attorney. We also talk about what a patent application should look like, why the first answer from the Patent Office is likely to be "no," and why writing a patent is an art form.

"The quality of drafting a patent application can make the difference between your patent being worthless or worth hundreds of thousands of dollars." - Jordan Becker

Listen to "Do I Need a Patent Lawyer?" on Spreaker.

Find us where you get your podcasts

Explore more in

Intellectual Property Law Patent Prosecution & Portfolio Counseling

Podcast series

The Tech Law Hangout

Welcome to The Tech Law Hangout, where law and technology collide in a dynamic conversation. Join Jordan Becker, a patent attorney and partner at Perkins Coie LLP, as he explores this ever-evolving intersection.

Regularly joined by his Perkins Coie colleagues, this podcast dives deep into the essentials and innovative strategies of technology law, including intellectual property (IP), corporate, privacy, and tech transactions. Whether you're an innovator, entrepreneur, or corporate decision-maker in the tech industry, this podcast is your go-to resource for navigating the legal landscape. Tune in and join the conversation at The Tech Law Hangout.

View the series