

In this episode, Chris and Jeremy analyze a recent Supreme Court decision affecting anti-discrimination laws, Muldrow v. City of St. Louis case. They discuss how this ruling expands the scope of "adverse actions" in the employment context and its impact on workplace policies and diversity efforts. The episode offers crucial insights for employment lawyers and human resource professionals alike, highlighting the need for adapting to new legal challenges.

Listen to "Update: Muldrow Sets a New Standard for Workplace Discrimination" on Spreaker.

Find us where you get your podcasts

Contributors

Christopher Wilkinson

Senior Counsel

CWilkinson@perkinscoie.com 202.661.5890

Jeremy Wright

Associate

JWright@perkinscoie.com 312.673.6496

Explore more in

Labor & Employment