

As Bloomberg Law recently reported, the SEC quietly disbanded its Climate and ESG Task Force, which had been active since March 2021 and played a key role in bringing enforcement actions against misleading environmental, social, and governance disclosures.

This move appears to be part of an overall shift in terminology and political positioning. The SEC, like many companies and institutional investors, seems to be moving away from the term “ESG” at least in part due to political backlash. Despite the dissolution of the task force, the SEC maintains its vigilance on ESG-related disclosures and may still bring enforcement actions when necessary.

Authors

Allison C. Handy

Partner

AHandy@perkinscoie.com 206.359.3295

Benjamin Dale

Associate

BDale@perkinscoie.com 206.359.3377

Blog series

Public Chatter

Public Chatter provides practical guidance—and the latest developments—to those grappling with public company securities law and corporate governance issues, through content developed from an in-house perspective.

View the blog